The Official Report (N. Y.) shows that the ratio of the number of policies upon which claims were paid in all companies, has advanced from 10.9 per thousand in 1872, to 11.9 in 1873. In the former year the American Popular lost 4.7, and in the latter 3.7 per thousand.

The rate of death claims and of expenses to total income, and to total amount at risk, increasing rather than diminishing in the case of the aggregate companies, being in both years very large, contrasts strongly with the low ratio of this Company as it is growing prosperity. In the light of these facts, its low premium rates are more than justified in a practical sense, as, in a scientific view, they are both equitable and secure.

Before the era of inflation in life insurance, the old-plan companies were shown by the reports to have done a comparatively small business, and it was, doubtless, with the large premiums they required, comparatively safe. Some, commencing later, "rushed business" from the first, with a vehemence that created amazement, and already, in common with the other companies, are beginning to experience the reaction that must have been expected from the abnormal and judiciously inflation.

The comparatively small (but really large for the kind) number of policies issued by this Company is one of the best evidences of its security—the rigid adherence to well-established scientific principles, in the rating of risks, giving low premiums only to superior lives, and thus making the Company attractive to few others. It would surprise those not acquainted with the working of our plan, to know the number of applications received and the amount of labor and care expended in their examination and rating, all of which is just so much to the advantage of superior risks.

It will also be noticed that large business is not a guarantee of safety, for if the mortality is high, indicating a want of care or skill in selection, the larger the business, the more safety is imperiled, and while small business may not show care, large business does show carelessness. We could have shown a very large business from the start if we had been indifferent to the kind. But the kind is the question, and more work is necessary in doing the amount of our kind of business than would do four times as much that would be unprofitable to both the assured and to the Company.

The increase of our business during the past year, is as wholesome and encouraging as our losses are small.

Our ratio of increase has been:
In number of Policies,		105.78
In amount of Assurance,		110.45
The ratio of all N. Y. Co.'s has been
In number of Policies,		102.02
In amount of Assurance,		102.30

KATIE KING

SELF EXPOSURE OF THE GREAT FRAUD HOW THE THING WAS DONE——SIMPLE EXPLANATION OF PRETENDED MIRACLES HOW THE CABINET WAS ARRANGED

The Philadelphia Press of this morning contains a full description of the Katie King fraud, from which we make the following extracts:

"That 'Katie King,' as presented for the last year at the Holmes seances in this city was a being of flesh and blood, has been ascertained beyond a doubt, but who she was, how she was secreted in the house, afterwards introduced into the cabinet, and so as [illegible] to leave it without mystery. 'Katie King,' or rather the young woman who personated her, is a widow with a child and a mother depending upon her for support. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Holmes became acquainted with her at a boarding-house, where they lived for some weeks subsequent to their advent in Philadelphia. About the time the Holmeses took possession of No. 50 North Ninth street, 'Katie King' (for reasons hereafter to be stated we will not publish her name) became unable to pay her board, and was finally reduced to such an extremity that she was absolutely penniless and almost without clothing. Finding that this was the case, the host [illegible] and turned the woman into the street. In this condition she was [illegible] by Mr. and Mrs. Holmes provided she would enact the part of a materialized spirit in their evening seances. Although the proposition was revolting, she was forced to accept it or see her child and mother suffer from hunger.

THE TRICK OF THE CABINET

The cabinet which had been placed in one corner of the second-story front room with one side against a door which opened into a bedchamber, was easily arranged so as to admit of ingress from the bedroom. The boards were all fastened with screws, and [illegible] were placed outside and inside about two feet from the floor. It was an easy matter to take out one of the boards, and put in its place a duplicate so divided at the battens that the point of juncture could not be seen. The upper part of this board was firmly secured, but the lower portion was loosely fastened with two screws, while the other screw heads were 'dummies.' When it was thought a strict examination of the cabinet would be made, the divided board could be taken out, and the original put back in its place.

"When the Katie King seances first began the gentleman who afterwards became so prominently connected with them, Dr. Child, of this city, was permitted to examine every nook and corner in the house. As he was for a time very sceptical on the question of materialization, the investigation were very thoroughly conducted. The visitors would then be congregated in the front room with the cabinet, and the door would be locked. 'Katie King' would soon after enter the house from the street, make her way to the bedroom, assume her white dress, and with a small screw-driver take out the lower portion of the divided board. These preparations could not be heard on account of the singing and music-box noise, which was continually kept up. To enter the cabinet was then an easy task for Katie, and with a stool she could reach the rather high aperture.

THE MYSTERIOUS PHENOMENA

The disappearing and reappearing part of the phenomenon was accomplished by gradually lowering a black cloth over herself, and at the same time crouching back in the corner. The semi-darkness of the room, combined with the knowledge of the inside of the cabinet, made this seemingly impossible feat very simple. The levitation manifestation, or the suspension of her body in the air, was done by means of a stool, covered with a black cloth. As it was impossible to distinguish any color but white within the cabinet, the stool was, of course, invisible, and by stepping upon it very deliberately, and gradually raising herself, the young lady was enabled to present the appearance of being lifted from and suspended above the floor. At the close of the seances there was always a delay of about ten minutes between the time of the last appearance of the alleged spirit and the knocks, which signified that no more were coming. During this time 'Katie' would slip through the hole in the cabinet, screw on the loosened board, and make her escape. Had the cabinet been taken apart at such a time the trick would have been discovered."

A HIDING PLACE.

The writer then explains how "Katie" on one occasion was enabled to escape from the room by holding the performance with a "dark seance," when the usual trap was not arranged, and continues:

"It has been stated that for a time the door leading from the front room into the hall was always locked. As this created much suspicion, the mediums finally consented to have it remain open until the manifestation first appeared. Under such circumstances it became necessary to make a change in the manner of keeping 'Katie' out of sight. The bolster on the bed was, therefore, so arranged that 'Katie' could creep into it, and in this she hid herself before the seance and after it was concluded. The bedroom was many times examined after the change, and the bed was also inspected, but no one ever thought of looking into the bolster to find out what it was stuffed with.

The bolster was none of your old-fashioned striped ticking bags, puffed up with down, but instead a wicker cage ingeniously constructed, and as ingeniously overlaid, in which the charming confederate to all this spiritualistic tomfoolery housed herself until she was to issue like a golden beauty from a cocoon.

QUIETING SUSPICION.

Kate King during last summer, when these seances were being given at No. 50 North Ninth street, boarded with Mrs. Holmes, and was at first suspected by Dr. Child, but on several occasions he was requested by Mrs. Holmes to answer the violent ringing of the door-bell immediately following the close of the seances. He always found the suspected lady waiting very impatiently to be let in, and she often complained that, as she boarded with Mrs. Holmes, that lady had no right to lock her out. The doctor's suspicions were soon quieted by this ruse, and the young lady was seldom afterwards thought of.

THE TENTH STREET SEANCES.

In the second-story front room of the house at 825 North Tenth street, the cabinet was placed in such a position that it stood about eighteen inches from a boarded-up window. As already described, this window was arranged in such a way that with the sash taken out there was room for a person to stand between the boards on the inside and the shutters on the outside. One of the boards was apparently fastened by screws, but they were only 'dummies.' In reality it swung on pivots, and was held in its place by a stout button on the inside. A board in the back of the cabinet was similarly arranged. Before the seances began 'Katie King' took her position in the window and fastened herself in. The space between the cabinet and the wall was then concealed by a door, which at first glance appeared as part of the cabinet, a table, covered with musical instruments was shoved up against it, and the guests, who were always received in a down-stairs room, were invited [illegible] ways opened [illegible] Katie would [illegible] making her w[illegible] tion in her co[illegible] seen when th[illegible] Mr. Holmes [illegible] and between [illegible] ions were pr[illegible] shown were m[illegible] made that the [illegible] ferent girls a[illegible] different' appe[illegible] conceal half a [illegible] pocket. THE DARK CIRCLE.

AN AMATEUR MEDIUM EXPOSES THE TRICKS OF THE DARK CIRCLE.

[From the Boston Globe.]

The subject of so-called Spiritual manifestations has been attracting an uncommon degree of interest, and there is some hope that they will at last be sifted to the bottom. If we are visited by the inhabitants of the other world, who can make their presence known by communications of "manifestations" of any kind, we are all interested in being assured of it upon conclusive evidence. If, on the contrary, our friends, or any portion of the human race, are subjects of imposture, there certainly ought to be acumen enough in the community to expose the tricks and free them from their delusion. Whatever may be said of intelligible communications which hundreds of honest people believe they have received from departed friends, or other demonstrations which occur in the light without the aid of visible human agency, which may or may not depend on animal magnetism, it seems probable that the cabinet tricks, the pretended materializations visible to the eye and the demonstrations of the dark circle will be shown to be the merest imposture in many if not in all cases. The following statement will be found by those seeking for light to be of interest and importance.

A DARK CIRCLE WITHOUT SPIRITS.

A young man lives within five miles of the State House who has made a study of all the tricks and illusions of modern legerdemain, and is an accomplished performer therein, whose interest has been excited upon this subject. Some of his friends had become devout believers in Spiritualism, and he, feeling assured in his own mind that they were the victims of fraud, went to work to investigate and expose what had been to them the strongest evidence of spirit presence. After three visits to the seances of Mrs. Hardy in that city, he became convinced that he was master of the whole subject, at least so far as the dark circle manifestations were concerned, and could give a successful seance of his own without the help of spirits. Accordingly he arranged for the sitting at his own home, and it took place last evening. The same representative of The Globe, who made a visit to Mrs. Hardy and gave an account of what he saw, was present, and he appeared to him, was among the persons invited.

A company of seventeen persons, all specially invited to see an expose of the dark circle manifestations, gathered at this house.—When they had all come together, they were taken to a room in which chairs were arranged in the usual way for a circle. They took their places, the chairs being drawn close together, making a ring about ten or twelve feet in diameter. The amateur 'medium' took a chair in the middle of the circle, submitting to the same conditions upon the company as are exacted by the professionals. The foot of one of the visitors was placed upon his to make sure that he did not move from his place, and he patted his hands together with a distinctly audible sound all the time, to show that they were not occupied in producing the manifestations. The hands of the persons in the circle were clasped together in the usual way. The light was then turned out, and, after the momentary pause usual in such cases, the raps were heard which announced the presence of the powers of [illegible] hands. The patting of hands continued without interruption, and presently a fan was seized from one of the party, and fanned the faces of the sitters all around the circle. Hands were shaken and patted, knees were slapped and faces touched by invisible beings. A watch was taken from one person and given to another on the opposite side of the circle. One man's cravat was taken off and given to another, and afterwards placed on the head of the owner. A music box, which had been placed in the hands of one person with the key in that of another, was taken away and given to another in another part of the circle. The key was taken and the box wound up, and then it could be heard tinkling through the air all around the circle. A spark of light circled about in the air above the head of the performer, and all the other demonstrations usual in these circles were produced with all the effect of the genuine spiritual seance. Finally, there was a cessation for a moment; raps were heard, indicating that the performance was over for the time being, a light was struck, and the performer, 'medium,' was discovered in precisely the position he occupied when the lights were turned out, tightly clasping his hands, and the person who held his feet to still declared he had not moved. After little rest, he took a new position, with a different person holding his feet, and substantially the same performance was repeated. All the persons present, several of whom had been believers in Spiritualism, declared that the manifestations were every way as perfect and satisfactory as any they had ever experienced.

STILL MORE WONDERFUL THINGS.

The young man then tried an experiment with perfect success, which he said he had seen Mrs. Hardy try three times, but without success, because, as she claimed, the conditions were not right for a perfect work of the spirits. He was tied to his chair with a cord, both the lower and upper part of his body, and had his wrists tied together with a handkerchief, in such a way that one would suppose that he would be unable to do anything. His feet were secured, a tumbler glass of water placed on the floor, some feet from his chair, and the lights turned out. Instantly the clapping began, and all the demonstrations of the circle already described were kept up for a few minutes, and then a light was struck, when the performer was seen in the same position as before, with the cords and handkerchief securely tied and the glass of water standing on his head. Yet another feat, more remarkable than this, followed. An ordinary padlock, which closed with a spring, was taken, and the key given to the keeping of a young lady. A cord was passed through the clasp, and tied together with a hard knot, after another, until more than a foot of knots was produced. This was thrown upon the floor. Then a euchre pack of cards was taken, including all the suits from the ten to the ace, and enough thrown out to reduce the number to seven, or the number of persons in the circle. After due instructions had been given, the circle was formed in the usual way, with the medium in the customary position, clapping his hands. The lights were again turned out. The cards were taken from the box and shuffled by one person and passed to his left hand neighbor, who shuffled them again, and so on around the circle. The person who began the shuffling then took the top card and passed the pack along, each person taking off the top card in like manner, thus using up the entire deck. Then the first person interrogated the medium as to the card which the said person held. "Is it a heart?" "Is it a diamond?" "Is it a spade?" "Is it a club?" At the mention of [illegible] one of the suits distinct raps were heard, indicating that that was the one. "Is it the jack?" "Is it the king?" "Is it the queen?" etc., was then asked, and when the right denomination was named the raps were repeated. So it went around the entire circle, each person, meantime, having the card in his or her pocket, and being warned to remember what it was, according to the information of the raps. This process being completed, the light was struck. The 'medium' was bound and tied to his chair with the cord that had been fastened so securely upon the lock, the hands were tied together with a handkerchief, and he was securely blindfolded with another handkerchief, and the lock was clasped into the button hole of a gentleman's coat. Moreover, every person, without exception, found that he held the card designated in the dark by the raps.

THE EXPOSE.

Now, of course, everybody was anxious to know how it was done. It was as usual, as anything accomplished in the dark by professional mediums. The young man volunteered to give the first manifestations with the gas burning. The circle was formed in the approved way, the raps were made with his knuckles on the chair without perceptibly interrupting the clapping, to indicate that the conditions were right. In an instant he slipped off his coat, and his arms were bare to the shoulder. While he kept clapping with one hand, sometimes on the upper part of his arm, sometimes on his face, he stretched out his other hand, seized a fan and fanned the faces all around. With one hand and then the other he clapped knees, shook hands, patted faces, and did everything done before in the dark without any intermission of the clapping, any moving of the feet, or any audible movement of the body. The whole thing was as simple as 'rolling off a log.' The coat was put on one arm at a time, while the other hand kept up the patting sound on the performer's cheek, and the raps were given telling that the show was over. A woman with loose sleeves, furnished with a band of elastic, would not have to take off or put on any garment. The other and more puzzling tricks were not explained, but everybody believed the assurance which they received, that they were tricks, and nothing more. The young man claims to have learned the art from his visits to Mrs. Hardy's circle, and to have obtained indubitable evidence that it was performed as he had shown. What the evidence was, he stated, and it certainly seemed to be beyond question.

STATE NEWS.

A patent has been granted to F. H. Williams, of Harrison, for railroad ties.

Deputy Marshal Williams, of Portland was taken suddenly and dangerously ill Saturday.

Capt. William Morse, of Sutton's Isle, died suddenly December 12th. He was about 70 years old.

One hundred men went to work on the Bay & River Railroad at Camden, Monday morning.

C. R. Whidden, of Calais, lost a $600 horse recently, in consequence of having his leg broken by the kick of another horse.

John Johnson was arrested in Lowell, Saturday, for bigamy, having one wife in Lowell and another in Biddeford.

The Reporter states that W. E. Potter and Isaac Bennett put up $50 each, the one to have the purse whose horse made quickest time between Augusta and Gardiner. Potter's horse won the money; Bennett's being exhausted, time 18 minutes; distance 6 miles. Cruelty to animals.

On Tuesday last, a daughter of Capt. Geo. W. James, of Pittston, became disgusted with this world, and took a teaspoonful of arsenic which she obtained from an acquaintance. Soon after she was seized with vomiting and medical assistance was at once summoned, and by the prompt administration of medicines her life was saved.

The best item of religious intelligence that we have seen deals in fifteen apostles with fifteen double horse teams and this force according to the Dover Observer, on the 15th inst. hauled twenty-four big loads of wood to the door of a sick man in Foxcroft—L. M. Bullard. The Observer well says: "Such acts of kindness serve to invigorate the spirits of a sick man, far more than most of the cordials in the list of patent medicines."

Up to the present time, the total number of applications for State Pensions at the Adjutant General's office is 755, of which [illegible] have been allowed. The total amount allowed these pensioners $21,[illegible]. The number of applications shows a slight increase over last year, and before the year expires, it is not unlikely that the number of applications will reach 800. The total amount that will be allowed will probably be a very little more than that allowed last year.

The Press says that a [illegible] hired a team Sunday morning. In the afternoon the horse came back to the stable with the harness badly torn. The sleigh was found later in the day completely wrecked. The man [illegible] returned, and there are [illegible] suspicions of foul play, as the man [illegible] money on his person. His name was [illegible]. The probability is the horse ran away.

GOOD SIGNS

The country and the Republican party have reason for congratulation upon the marked improvement in the temper of Congress in the three weeks of the session previous to the Holidays. The bitter controversy which broke loose almost immediately after assembling, on the re-introduction of Kelley's convertible bond scheme, inclined the public to despair of any finance at progress during the session but the gloomy anticipations have been most pleasantly dispelled by the steps and tone of members. Kelley seems to have found all his threats of leaving the Republican party less terrifying than his opposed, and he has comparatively subsided while Dawes evidently discovered that the House is not so easily stampeded as for some time. Indeed the opening of both appears to have had a good effect on both sides, calling members back applied themselves with diligence and zeal to the task of legislating harmony out of chaos.

It is impossible for New England readers who desire to obtain reliable information of Washington affairs from the newspapers to fully appreciate the difficulties of the financial situation in Congress. We all believe that inflation is a pestilent fraud, and are impatient that Congress has not utterly repudiated it by a policy. But unfortunately the friends of sound currency have to contend with a strong force composed of members who advocate inflation because they think their constituents demand it. The Republicans were strong enough at the last session to control the two Houses and the majority and the Executive would have been compelled to, fight against inflation, but that the Democrats are in power in the House with financial heresy in their creed, and the Republicans but they are not yet in power and the dominant party is divided, rendering both the task of the hard money party much less easy to win over. It is now become necessary to have command of three-fifths in the House to carry a measure to a successful issue, and the country should give heed to this fact in the full measure of their success.

The passage of the financial bill in the Senate just announced by telegraph is a gratifying sign of progress. While the measure may not be all that we could wish, the fact that it could secure the passage of a specie resumption bill itself is this fact where a reasonable majority is given. If the Senate will now pass the House bill, the friends of specie payments will be reassured, and four years will begin at once to produce its favorable effects which the interval is sufficiently long to shield from any serious disturbance of value. The details of the Senate bill will be thoroughly discussed by the newspapers but the general fact which most interests the public is the fact of the enactment of a decided step in the right direction. The Senate measure only postponed a good day's work before the holiday adjournment and it is to be hoped that the House may exhibit a similar disposition to improve its opportunity to pass a right measure.

The action of the popular branch on this question will be watched with keen interest and it is well to call general desire to see how Senate and the Democrats will improve in adding an agreement upon a measure looking towards hard money. Let the Republicans of the House co-operate with the Senate in giving the country a decided assurance of resumption and they will have adopted the most efficient means of meeting the opposition gales of panic November, and of regaining all of the former prestige of the party.

Mr. Owen writes a long card to the New York Tribune about the "Katie King" fraud. He takes it for exposure a good thing for Spiritualism, which it certainly is if Spiritualism is what it claims to be and if it is not the exposure is a good thing for the world at large, as helping to dispel a delusion. Here at the same time with apparent infatuation deprecates the ruling of "conditions so stringent as totally to arrest the phenomena."

The Boston Post thinks that phenomena which would be arrested by the sound tests necessary to test their genuineness are, to say the least, very suspicious. Let us have conditions which will give an absolute test or the manifestations will be worthless.

The Worcester Spy applies the test, the effects of an accurate seven-shooter on the immaculate spirits of the Eddy family, saying:

If the bullets shoot harmlessly through the spectral limbs, no fraud, if somebody is hurt or killed, then—well a trial for homicide perhaps but not the Lizzy sure.

The Albany Journal in a double leaded editorial summarizes that its private advices from Washington are of the most cheering and great significance in regard to the prospects of the Republican members agreeing upon a satisfactory financial bill.

The New York World prints a letter from a San Francisco correspondent giving an account of an alleged case of cannibalism in Hawaii, and asks "Did King Kalakaua ever eat a missionary? The World must print something you know, and the Sandwich Island king is the guest of the detested Republican Administration.

CONCERNING DIVIDENDS. We clip the following from the Portland Press:

The Maine Central, it is said, had a sufficient surplus to declare a dividend on its stock but by the terms of the contract with the Eastern, the directors cannot declare a dividend until the latter does so. It is understood that the Eastern is not in a condition to make a dividend, consequently the stockholders of the Maine Central must be deprived of such a luxury until the Eastern is prepared to do so. This, the wise ones say, is the cause of the restiveness of the Maine Central people.

Intimations which have been circulated to the effect that one of the Signaboee delegation is opposed to Mr. Hamlin, are decisively set at rest by the Bath Times as follows:

Upon the Senatorial question in Bowdoin, the Republicans feel satisfied that Mr. Fessenden, their representative-elect, will vote for Mr. Hamlin again, and do all he can to send him back to the Senate. Mr. Purinton remarked the other day that he was pleased with the privilege of voting for him as Vice-President and should be pleased to sustain him in any other position.

THE "KATIE KING" CATASTROPHE

(From the N. Y. Evening Post.)

Spiritualism has just received one of the severest blows ever delivered against it—a blow all the more damaging because it comes from within the mystic circle of the great modern delusion. The January number of the Atlantic, published a few days ago contains a long and careful article by Robert Dale Owen reviewing the pretended materialization of the spirit of "Katie King," at Philadelphia, avowing his belief in the genuineness of the phenomenon and giving a reason for the faith that was in him. We say that was in him because, before the publication of his Atlantic article but after it was printed and too late to suppress it, Mr. Owen sent to the Banner of Light a card withdrawing the assurances he had given of his confidence in the Philadelphia manifestation. Mr. Owen is a cultivated man, and his whole sincerity will not for a moment be questioned. When he avowed his faith in "Katie King," everybody believed that he expressed an honest conviction. When he says that he no longer has faith in Katie King everybody still believes him. Since Mr. Owen's card was published, two more articles, the whole story of the entire alteration, impost on has been told. The fraud was exposed in an article in the Philadelphia Inquirer republished in the Evening Post yesterday, and on Tuesday another account from the Philadelphia Press. These revelations will of course add to the surprise, but astonishment will be deepened at the ingenuity and clever dissimulation of a man as Mr. Owen, with such superior natural endowments. The fatal article reads in short like a chapter of accidents. A fake is started, a fraud is practiced, a story is told, which of course is found to be false, and one after another the friends of the fraud are compelled to abandon it. Finally, the whole thing is exposed, and the exposer is himself exposed to the ridicule of the world. Mr. Owen's article is a curiosity of literature. It is a confession of the most humiliating character, and yet it is made with a coolness and self-possession which are simply astounding. Mr. Owen has been a student of Spiritualism for years. He has written books and articles in its defense. He has been a leader of the faith. He has had the most ample opportunities for observation. He has had the most unlimited confidence in the honesty of Katie King. He has had the most unbounded faith in the genuineness of the phenomena

DOMESTIC NEWS.

THIRD CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION
WASHINGTON, December 22
SENATE

Mr Sherman moved that the Senate [illegible] the consideration of the bill to provide for the resumption of specie payment Mr Schurz [illegible] was the purpose of [illegible] to discuss the bill to day Mr Sherman replied that he proposed to [illegible] the bill to a passage to-day or to-morrow

Mr Schurz [illegible] for a return to specie payment, but thought that due time [illegible] given for an examination of the [illegible]

Mr Sherman said it was important that [illegible] question should be settled, and [illegible] that this bill ought to be passed [illegible] to the House without delay

Mr Schurz said the details of this bill were of too much importance to be disposed of in a few hours

Mr Bayard hoped the bill would not be taken up till after the holidays

After debate the bill was read being considered at 1 o'clock, when the Chair announced that the morning hour had expired and the Senate would resume the unfinished business, being the bill for the better government of the District of Columbia, upon which Mr Merrimon was entitled to the floor

[illegible]

Mr Boutwell introduced a bill to amend [illegible] of the Revised Statutes of the United States entitled Regulation of steam vessels [illegible] Referred to the Committee on Commerce

Mr Sargent submitted a resolution [illegible] the Committee on Appropriations [illegible] Lighthouse Board [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr Sherman said he did not intend to reopen the debate on the financial topics of last session The Senate was composed of the same persons now and [illegible] when there was a general feeling that Congress should do something He desired to say to the Senate that every word and every line of this bill [illegible] The bill might fail short in many particulars but it was one which demanded reasonable concessions from every Senator He then explained the various provisions of the bill and said that the first section providing for the redemption of fractional currency with coin met the approval of both the Secretary of the Treasury and the President The second [illegible] repealed the law making a charge of one fifth of one per cent for converting standard gold bullion into coin, required a sacrifice on the part of the Government to the extent of $80,000 per annum, that being the amount paid as yet upon those who brought gold bullion to be made into coin The third section provided for free banking Under the present law banking is virtually free in some of the Western and Southern States but in the great commercial centres of the country it was not free This free banking section [illegible] for the enlargement of the volume of the currency in case the business of the country demanded it It also provided to [illegible] United States notes to the extent of 80 per cent of the amount of new bank notes issued The section did not propose either contraction or expansion of the currency leaving it to be governed by the business wants of the community The bill also provided ample means to maintain and provide for specie resumption and no Senator could doubt that if the bill became law specie payments would be resumed on the 1st of Jan 1879 If [illegible] should be made by Senators to engraft other provisions on this bill, they would lead to its defeat He reviewed the several plans for a specie resumption heretofore considered by the Senate and said he had been compelled to surrender his ideas in regard to resumption

Mr Schurz inquired if the eighty per cent of legal tenders redeemed were to be retired

Mr Sherman said that would be a question for consideration four years from now, or as soon as the amount of legal tenders shall be reduced to $300 000 000 He did not think anything should be said in this bill as to whether that eighty per cent should be destroyed or reissued No man knew how fast the new notes would be issued, but the reissue would undoubtedly revive the business interests of the country Before the arrival of the time when legal tenders are to be reduced to $300 000 000, one or two Congresses would have met and disappeared and he thought it much better to leave the question of destroying and reissuing that money to the future

Mr Schurz—The Senator then admits that the Secretary may reissue the 80 per cent again?

Mr Sherman—I do not make any such admission Continuing his argument he said it would not be wise to introduce into this bill a controversy which would destroy that unity by which the good it contained could be accomplished He approved the bill because every portion of it tended to specie payments

Mr Schurz said Congress ought to make the bill as clear as possible, the Senator (Sherman) knew from experience that if the least loophole be left, the Treasury might reissue thirty or forty millions, as it did once before

Mr Thurman said the 1st and 2d Sections of the bill were all right, but the 3d Section he thought was very weak, this was a bill of a great deal of omission, and the least possible commission For a year past there had been free banking in many portions of the country, and the consequence was that the currency had increased about a million and a half dollars. Pass this bill, and he ventured the assertion that the increase of national bank currency in the next four years would be not over two millions of dollars, and the retirement of greenbacks not over eight millions. The panic upon the country now was the result of overtrading and extravagance until at last the bubble burst and then came a season of retrenchment or economy. In the history of this country it was shown that the business of the country never revived in a less period than four years after a panic. Nothing but true economy and retrenchment would set business in motion and make the country prosperous. It could not be by tinkering, or by bills which omitted everything and contained nothing. He offered an amendment as an additional section, "That from and after June 30, 1875, one-twentieth part of the customs duties shall be payable in United States legal tender notes or in national bank notes, and after June 30, 1876, [illegible] and after June 30, 1877, one fifth part thereof may be paid "

Mr Bogy moved to amend the amendment by striking out all after the word 'that' in the first line, and insert in lieu thereof a provision that on and after July 1, 1875, duties on imports be paid in legal tender notes or coin at the option of the importer He spoke at some length in support of his amendment, and said he would vote for the bill reported from the Finance Committee with his amendment attached, otherwise he would vote against the bill

Mr Bayard enquired of the Chairman of the Finance Committee (Mr Sherman) if he would object to inserting the word [illegible] after the word "redeem" in the third section so that it would read "It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem and destroy the United States notes in excess only of $300 000 000," etc.

Mr Sherman said he had stated before that in his opinion that question should be left to the future and he could not consent to the amendment

Mr Bayard said the honorable Senator, (Sherman) had betrayed here both his own [illegible] and his displeasure [illegible] (Bayard) hoped the country would note the answer of the chairman of the Finance Committee, who, [illegible] his party friends here, declined to allow the bill to be amended It was well known [illegible] the Treasury Department had been governed without law [illegible]

Mr Hamilton of Md, said that the effect of this bill would be to ask the next Congress to pass a law authorizing the reissue of the 80 per cent redeemed The next House of Representatives would have a Democratic majority and he did not want his party to be put in the way of temptation (Laughter)

Mr Bogy's amendment was rejected without division Mr Thurman's amendment was rejected Yeas 10, nays 50

Mr Salisbury moved to strike out 1879 as the time for return to specie payments and insert 1877 Rejected

Mr Hamilton moved to strike out the clause and to insert in place thereof that from and after the 1st of July, 1876 [illegible] but gold and silver shall be legal tender for the payment of debts contracted thereafter

Mr Stevenson opposed the bill because he did not know whether he was voting for contraction or expansion He was unwilling to vote it in the power of any Secretary of the Treasury to expand the currency at his desire He had [illegible] the honesty and good faith of the present Secretary of the Treasury but would not leave such power in the hands of any Secretary, either Republican or Democrat

Mr Hamilton said he would withdraw his amendment

Mr Edmunds objected, and said it could not be withdrawn A call for the yeas and nays having been demanded, the chair (Mr [illegible]) ruled that it could be withdrawn The yeas and nays [illegible] the Senate did no order them [illegible] withdrawn

Mr Carpenter [illegible] to put in a protest upon the ruling of the Chair upon the [illegible] for the yeas and nays [illegible] and the question should have been put, if the Senator from Maryland [illegible]

Mr Schurz said he would vote for the bill in spite of its defects He would vote for it because it contained a pledge to return to specie payment in 1879 [illegible] this body voting for the bill [illegible] to redeem the pledge [illegible] He did not think all the financial ability of America was confined within the walls of the [illegible] the country would say the provisions of the bill were inadequate to carry out the promise named in the title He thought that the bill would leave the currency of the country in the same condition in which it found it He offered no factious opposition to it but did not think it would produce [illegible] effect upon the business of the country The Senator from Ohio (Sherman) knew the bill could not be passed before the holidays, and why not [illegible]

[illegible]

The following is the vote on the motion to take up the [illegible] bill:

Yeas—Messrs Allison, Anthony, Boreman, Boutwell, Cameron, Carpenter, Chandler, Clayton, Dorsey, Edmunds, Ferry, (of Mich) Flanagan, Frelinghuysen, Hamilton (of Texas) Hamlin, Harvey, Hitchcock, Ingalls, Lewis, Logan, Mitchell, Morrill (of Maine) Morrill (of Vermont) Morton, Oglesby, Patterson, Pease, Pratt, Ramsey, Sargent, Scott, Sherman, Spencer, Washburn, West, Windom and Wright—37

Mr Garfield, of Ohio, asked unanimous consent to report and have passed a bill appropriating $20 000 to defray the expenses of the visit of King Kalakaua and suite

Mr. Hereford, of West Virginia, objected, and the bill was not received.

Mr. Dawes presented a communication, signed by Doctors Johnson and Garrett, notifying the House that Richard B Irwin is not at present in physical condition to present himself at the bar of the House, or to be subjected to any mental excitement.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill: The following are the principal items of the bill, which appropriates in all about $17 000 000 for the pay of officers and 8,500 men of the Navy, $6,250 000, for civil establishments at navy yards and stations, $1,250 000; for general maintenance of navy yards and docks, $700,000; provisions for officers, seamen and marines, $1,500,000, preservation of vessels, purchase of stores, etc., $3,300 000; repairs of boilers, machinery, etc., $1,300,000, for marine corps, $878 000

Mr. Burleigh, of Illinois, moved to reduce the item for contingent expenses. Rejected

Mr. Randall intimated that he would in the next Congress show double the energy in casting out unfaithful Democrats he had hitherto shown in casting out unfaithful Republicans. Finally the Committee rose and the House passed the bill.

The Speaker presented a communication from the President with a petition of colored citizens of Alabama, in regard to troubles in that State. Referred to the Select Committee on that subject.

The Speaker presented the application of a large number of members for leave of absence, so large a number that Messrs Garfield and Eldridge suggested doubts whether a quorum would be left The applications were all granted The House at 3 10 adjourned

MODERN CHRISTIANITY A CIVILIZED HEATHENISM This is a little volume, full of power and one which anybody will find full of interest, be he saint or sinner. Few who begin a perusal of the volume will be satisfied with a single reading. William F. Gill & Co , publishers, Boston. For sale at Bugbee's.

SOWED BY THE WIND, is the title of a volume of the Forest Glen Series, by Elijah Kellogg. The story is designed for boys and is a good one, but leaves off at a point where the next volume of the Series will be wanted by the reader to complete a history of the characters. The book was evidently published in a hurry as there are occasional typographical errors in it, Lee & Shepard, Boston, Publishers. For sale at Hight's.

THE "STAR" BALL.

The [illegible] ball by the gentlemen of the Bangor Police Department was given at Norombega Hall, it being the first event of the kind under their auspices The weather was very unpropitious, and just at this time the ladies are preoccupied with holiday preparations yet despite both these circumstances there was a good attendance of ladies and gentlemen well known in social and business circles, no less than two hundred and fifty being present, of whom forty or fifty couples appeared on the floor at a time.

The hall was finely decorated, and presented a handsome appearance The ends and sides were draped with flags and bunting from the central chandelier streamers of red, white and blue bunting extended to the sides and ends of the hall, the front of the galleries was ornamented with small flags, while between the gas jets were hung a variety of engravings and paintings kindly loaned by Mr. C L Dakin The most striking object, however, was a large star, which depended from the chandelier in the centre of the hall, and which was inscribed with the legend "Bangor Police, 1874 The large flags were furnished by the Messrs. Hincks & Neally, and Currier & Hook; the small flags and bunting by Wheelwright, Clark & Co , the large star was gotten up by Officers Fancy and Quimby, and the decorating was done under the direction of Mr John Foster.

The order of dances included fifteen favorite selections, and the mottoes which followed each were neat and suggestive,

The first was as follows, and suggests the style of the others

"OVERTURE, Winter's Carnival, arranged by Andrews
"A dash on the Hampden Road."

The music was by Andrews' Orchestra, and the fine selection with which the evening's pleasure was introduced, displayed the ability of the leader to meet the requirements of the season, as he always does of the public

The floor managers were as follows:

Gen. Charles W. Roberts, Eugene M. Hersey, Frank P. Wood, Charles Prescott, Gen. Daniel White, John S. Jenness and R. S. Morison

Everything passed off delightfully, the floor being in excellent condition for dancing, which closed shortly after midnight. Refreshments were served by Fraser. The members of the police force were present, but, with one or two exceptions, did not dance. Four members of the Portland police force were present by invitation—the Messrs Israel Hicks, Charles W Hanson, James M Beck and B Gribbins

Socially the ball was a complete success, thanks to the exertions of the committee of arrangements, consisting of Marshal Bolton and officers E H Bunker and John Pratt Financially the returns were not so large as might have been desired, but, all things considered, the Police Department of Bangor may congratulate themselves upon the results of this, their first ball

WHAT AND WHERE.

A VISIT TO A LARGE NUMBER OF PLACES IN BANGOR WHERE DESIRABLE HOLIDAY PRESENTS CAN BE OBTAINED

All day long on yesterday the streets were crowded with people who thronged the shops where holiday goods are for sale As a rule these customers returned home with empty pockets, while their arms were filled with bundles and packages of shapes and sizes innumerable. It is curious in this connection to notice what a big load can be bought for a little money at the toy shops while a large amount of cash expended at the jewelry stores is represented by a package of delicate proportions A majority of those who have [illegible] of purchases to make, however, have reserved that duty for to-day and to-morrow, and for the benefit of these a few hints and suggestions may prove serviceable, being a continuance of yesterday's article on the same subject.

THE TOY [illegible]

These are alight to behold, with their throngs of juvenile patrons—urchins excited open mouthed, wonder eyed, and garrulous eager to see everything and covetous of all the marvelous wonders that tempt their gaze

H W Bugbee, at the Bangor Bazaar on Main street, makes a large and attractive display of just such things as Santa Claus finds most acceptable for the good boys and girls He [illegible] every [illegible] from a doll to a complete outfit for a doll's housekeeping economy [illegible] jumping jack to a [illegible] [illegible] novelties in fancy goods articles for presents [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

The confectioners' windows are perfectly demoralizing to the little ones [illegible] the sweetest [illegible] large or small [illegible] Christmas without bonbons would be like a Thanksgiving minus the turkey, and the [illegible] of somebody must be greatly taxed [illegible] the novelties in form, flavor and color which this year [illegible] for the holiday trade

In addition to their regular stock of [illegible] and fancy confectionaries the Messrs. A L & R C Boyd have an assortment of candy toys and [illegible] which are excellent [illegible] They also have more substantial [illegible] California honey, a fresh lot of Valencia oranges, which have a fine effect on the Christmas tree, [illegible] Malaga grapes and hot roasted peanuts [illegible] At H L Bates's are jars and boxes full of pure candies made fresh every day together with cornucopias, sugar toys and quantities of handsome things to adorn the tree or stuff the stockings [illegible] the popular caterer has the choicest and best of everything pertaining to the confectioner's art, and [illegible] his [illegible] reputation [illegible] with the children and the public.
